TRUSTEE DAY
A Day Designed for Trustees of ISACS Schools

An Extension of the ISACS Annual Conference
Thursday, November 5 • 9:30 am - 3:30 pm

TRUSTEE DAY PROGRAM

8:15 am – 9:15 am
Registration

9:30 am – 11:30 am
Patrick F. Bassett, Heads Up Educational Consulting
• Governance 101/201/301
This presentation will include role plays and video case studies to define the “jobs” and boundaries of the major constituencies (board; parents; alumni; faculty/staff; and head/admin team). The session will focus on three levels of governance for high functioning boards (fiduciary, strategic, and generative). Bassett will apply these three levels as the lenses of oversight, foresight, and insight to the challenges and opportunities facing the school. Modeled in the session will be how boards should think and work.

• Trends Impacting the Independent School Sector
This presentation is based on the research NAIS assembles in its annual NAIS Trendbook and will extract from each of the last three years’ Trendbooks the common trends and topics to which boards and school leaders should pay attention: shifts in the economy related to purchasing power; shifts in school-age and teacher demographics; the landscape of access and affordability related to financial aid trends; student safety, health, and school climate; the philanthropy outlook; changes in the American family; and the diversity outlook.

11:45 am – 1:15 pm
ISACS Luncheon & Keynote Presentation
Michael Fosberg, Author, Artist & Activist
Incognito: Hiding in Plain Sight

1:30 pm – 3:30 pm
Allen J. Proctor, Center for Social Enterprise Development
• Silver Bullets That Can Turn to Lead
A clear understanding of the business model embraced by sustainable nonprofits shows there are no silver bullets to deliver sustainability. Beginning with examples of how other nonprofits are building more sustainable business models, learn how some commonly held notions of fiscal responsibility, such as budget balance and building endowment, can harm rather than support the reliability and sustainability of your educational program.
